Foyt's top lap in yesterday's practice was 205.714 mph. The fastest speed was 211.515 by pole-winner Mario Andretti.

Assuming Foyt's car can be repaired by Sunday, he will keep his starting spot on the inside of the second row. But another crash yesterday, by former Formula One champion Emerson Fittipaldi, forced him to the back of the field and set off a shuffling of the rest of the lineup.

Fittipaldi's car was damaged too severely to be repaired, and car owner Pat Patrick said a backup would be substituted for the race. It's the second straight year that a crash during the final practice period forced a lineup change. Last year, Dennis Firestone crashed and had to withdraw altogether because he had no backup car.

Simon, who then was the 34th fastest qualifier, got into the race as the first alternate.

Yesterday's crashes increased to 23 the number since practice for the race began May 2.

Three-time winner Al Unser took over Ongais' car and qualified for a seventh-row start. Unser's teammate, two-time winner Rick Mears, had the second-fastest practice speed, 207.134, yesterday.

Other speeds during the final practice included 205.855 mph by Michael Andretti, Mario's 25-year-old son; 203.389 by three-time winner Johnny Rutherford, 203.297 by defending champion Bobby Rahal; and 202.794 by former winner Danny Sullivan.
